KENT HERITAGE WOOD FIRES NEW PRODUCT RELEASE

With their high quality and classic good looks, Kent wood fires have been New Zealand's trusted home heating favourite for more than 30 years. Now Kent is proudly releasing three fresh, new free-standing 'favourites' to the market – Haast, Aspiring and Murchison – continuing its reputation for designing products specifically for the unique requirements of New Zealand homes.

The cleaner lines contemporary styling and larger glass viewing area, of this 'southern trio' fit them perfectly into many environments. The result of consumer driven research these stylish newcomers retain Kent's proven double burning combustion technology, guaranteeing cost efficient and clean burning home heating.

The new models sit alongside Kent's established larger and smaller wood burners, providing an ideal mid-size option from this iconic market leader. Synonymous with leading edge design, quality and efficiency, Kent's new releases offer an exceptional 18kW of true radiant heat output comfortably heating up to 210m² at an exceptionally competitive and comfortable price.

Allowing full view of the fire from wherever you sit, these resilient 'southerners' offer steel plate cooking and a choice of angled leg styling, pedestal or convenient dry wood storage base, as well as the high quality 6mm radiant steel construction, 10 year vermiculite firebox warranty and overall efficiency you've come to expect from Kent.

All models are clean air approved and backed by industry leader, Aber Holdings Ltd's 30 years' home heating experience and technical expertise.

"We understand the importance wood fires play in heating Kiwi homes. We develop products that enable Kiwis to use this natural renewable resource with minimal impact on our environment," says Aber Managing Director, Gregg Brown.

"Kent is proven, reliable and Kiwi. Designed and manufactured in New Zealand, Kent is 100% New Zealand through and through."

Quite simply, designed and made for Kiwi lifestyles and environments, with complete technical back-up a mere phone call away. We are proud of these new additions and there are more to come. So watch this space."

Kent - designed here, made here, loved here.
